Welcome

As COVID-19 ravages countries around the world, the topics investigated by international development researchers have never felt more pertinent. We all need to consider the myriad ways in which humans connect with other humans in our globalised world, and both the damage and the benefits that these connections bring. For me, it is a chance to reflect on the last five years of our Development Studies publishing programme, which has seen the publication of 200 new books- books which challenge us to think critically about the successes and failures of global efforts to achieve positive change.

As we consider what a post-COVID-19 era looks like, I know that our authors will continue to ask the tough questions about what the next chapter in our global story should look like. It is a privilege to help them to do so. If you have a new book idea which you would like to be considered for inclusion in the Routledge Development Studies publishing programme, please contact me at helena.hurd@tandf.co.uk.

Adventures in the Aid Trade

Forty Years Practising Development in Forty Countries

Richard Holloway

Adventures in the Aid Trade takes us on a fascinating journey through 40 years of work at the coal face of international development. Drawing on his experiences from long periods in the field, the author reflects on what has worked, what has not and why, and considers how these experiences relate to students and practitioners today. Whether you are a current development practitioner, or a student just starting out in your understanding of the development and humanitarian sectors, this book provides an invaluable snapshot of the world of civil society organisations, governance, the voluntary sector, and the lived lives of ordinary people in extraordinary times.

Aid and Development

John Overton, Victoria, University of Wellington, NZ and Warwick E. Murray, Victoria University of Wellington, New Zealand

Series: Routledge Perspectives on Development

This book provides an overview of what aid is, how it has changed over time, and how it is practiced, as well as debates about whether aid works, for whom, and what its future might be. It is an important resource for students, development workers and policy makers seeking an understanding of how aid works. The text shows how 'aid' is a contested and fluid concept that involves a wide and changing variety of policies, actors and impacts. Each chapter includes case studies, chapter summaries, discussions, weblinks and further reading, to help strengthen the reader's understanding.

Education and Development

Simon McGrath, University of Nottingham, UK

Series: Routledge Perspectives on Development

This title explores the place of education in development debates and provides a systematic and a theoretical overview of the main approaches to the subject. It emphasizes the fact that education is profoundly shaped by national and local cultures even if many issues are shared across different locations. The chapters discuss human capital, human rights and human development, education, gender and development, and draw on examples from a wide range of countries such as India, Hong Kong, Kenya and South Africa. It is aimed at the undergraduate level, and also development practitioners, policy makers, entrepreneurs and corporate employees engaged in aspects of

Engendering Development

Capitalism and Inequality in the Global Economy

Amy Trauger, University of Georgia, USA and Jennifer L. Fluri, University of Colorado at Boulder, US

Engendering Development demonstrates how gender is a form of inequality that is used to generate global capitalist development. It charts the histories of gender, race, class, sexuality and nationality as categories of inequality under imperialism, which continue to support the accumulation of capital in the global economy today. The book will prove to be useful to advanced undergraduate and graduate students enrolled in courses on development.

Geopolitics and Development

Marcus Power

This textbook examines the historical emergence of development as a form of governmentality, from the end of empire to the Cold War and the War on Terror. It illustrates the various ways in which the meanings and relations of development as a discourse, an apparatus and an aspiration, have been geopolitically imagined and enframed. Primarily intended for scholars and post-graduate students in Development Studies, Human Geography, African studies and International Relations, this book provides an engaging, invaluable and up-to-date resource for making sense of the complex entanglement between geopolitics and development, past and present.

The Political Economy of Latin America

Reflections on Neoliberalism and Development after the Commodity Boom

Peter Kingstone, King's College London, UK

This brief text offers an unbiased reflection on debates about neoliberalism and its alternatives in Latin America with an emphasis on the institutional puzzle that underlies the region's difficulties with democratization and development. In addition to providing an overview of this key element of the Latin American political economy, Peter Kingstone also advances the argument that both state-led and market-led solutions depend on effective institutions, but little is known about how and why they emerge. Kingstone offers a unique contribution by mapping out the problem of how to understand institutions, why they are created, and why Latin American ones limit democratic development.

A New Narrative for Africa

Voice and Agency

Abiodun Alao, Kings College London, UK

This book examines the perception of Africa in the global system, tracing Africa's transition from a "problem" to be solved into an agent with a rising voice in the world. The author calls for a new political narrative about Africa, capturing the multi-disciplinary dimensions of Africa's "transition" and critically examining its ramifications. Taking an interdisciplinary approach, this book will be of interest across African Studies, Global Affairs, politics, economics and development studies.

Aid Power and Politics

Edited by Iliana Olivé and Aitor Pérez

Series: Rethinking Development

Why it is that countries spend so much money on aid for the well-being of non-citizens outside their borders? Aid Power and Politics delves into the political roots of aid policy, demonstrating how and why governments across the world use aid for global influence. Bringing together insight from international relations and development studies, the book argues that individual countries both have the capacity to shape global trends, and are at the same time shaped by global norms. This book will be an important read for international development students, researchers, practitioners and policy makers.

Epistemic Freedom in Africa

Deprovincialization and Decolonization

Sabelo J. Ndlovu-Gatsheni, University of South Africa

Series: Rethinking Development

Epistemic Freedom in Africa is about the struggle for African people to think, theorise, interpret the world and write from where they are located, unencumbered by Eurocentrism. The imperial denial of common humanity to some human beings meant that in turn their knowledge was awarded little or no value. Now, Sabelo J. Ndlovu-Gatsheni argues the need to centre Africa as a legitimate historical unit of analysis and epistemic site from which to interpret the world, whilst simultaneously globalising knowledge from Africa. Ultimately, the book argues that only once the problem of epistemic freedom had been addressed can Africa achieve political, cultural, economic and other freedoms.

Negotiating the Sustainable Development Goals

A transformational agenda for an insecure world

Felix Dodds, University of North Carolina & Tellus Institute, USA, Ambassador David Donoghue, Permanent Mission of Ireland to the United Nations, USA and Jimena Leiva Roesch, International Peace Institute, USA

The Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) are a universal set of 17 goals, targets and indicators agreed by UN member states to frame their policy agendas for the next fifteen years (2015 to 2030). Written by three authors who have been engaged in the development of the SDGs from the beginning, this book offers an insider view of the process. It reviews how the SDGs were developed, what happened in key meetings and how this transformational agenda which took several years to negotiate came together. It is essential reading for all interested in

Peacebuilding in Contemporary Africa explores the challenges faced by societies transitioning from armed conflicts to peace in contemporary Africa. It evaluates the effectiveness and outcomes of existing peacebuilding initiatives, and proposes new strategies to facilitate the transition. In particular, the book aims to investigate micro-level conflicts, as they are often disregarded in peacebuilding literature, which tends to focus on macro-level, neo-liberal state reconstruction and peacebuilding efforts. The book provides a much needed perspective from African scholars, and will interest students, researchers, policy makers and practitioners with an interest in promoting peace in Africa.

Refugees, Migration and Global Governance

Negotiating the Global Compacts

Elizabeth G. Ferris and Katharine M. Donato

Looking in particular at the two global migration and governance compacts resulting from the 2016 UN Declaration on Refugees and Migrants, this book asks what the international community can do on the one hand to affirm and strengthen safe, orderly, and regular migration to help drive economic growth and prosperity, whilst on the other hand responding to the problems caused by increasing numbers of refugees and irregular migrants. This highly engaging account of the very first global international migration declaration and compacts will be of interest to policy-makers, academics and students concerned with global migration and refugee governance.

Refugees, Migration and Global Governance

Negotiating the Global Compacts

Edited by Emma Mawdsley, Elsje Fourie and Wiebe Nauta

Series: Rethinking Development

Over the last two decades the expanding role of Southern countries as development partners has led to tectonic shifts in global development ideas, practices, norms and actors. This book examines this rapidly growing and complex phenomenon, asking to what extent existing assumptions, conceptual frameworks and definitions of 'development' need to be reframed in the context of researching this new landscape. This book will be of interest to anyone conducting research on development in the Global South, whether they are a practitioner or policy maker, or a student or researcher in politics, international development, area studies, or international relations.

Southern-Led Development Finance

Solutions from the Global South

Edited by Diana Barrowclough, Kevin P. Gallagher and Richard Kozul-Wright

Series: Rethinking Development

This book examines some of the innovative new south-south financial arrangements and institutions that have emerged in recent years, as countries from the Global South seek new ways to transform their economies and to shield themselves from global economic turbulence. At a time when governments and businesses frustrated by the traditional North-dominated mechanisms and international financial system are seeking new approaches to investment, trade and finance, this book is a timely contribution to the debate. With insights from both theory and practice, it will be of interest to practitioners, policy makers, researchers and students working on development finance.

The Angry Earth

Disaster in Anthropological Perspective

Edited by Anthony Oliver-Smith, Susanna Hoffman and Susanna M. Hoffman

The Angry Earth explores how various cultures in different historical moments have responded to calamity. Through case studies drawn from around the globe the contributors to this volume examine issues ranging from the social and political factors that set the stage for disaster, to the cultural processes experienced by survivors, to the long-term impact of disasters on culture and society. In the second edition, each chapter has been updated with a postscript to reflect on recent developments in the field. There is also new material on key present-day topics including epidemics, drought, non-governmental organizations, and displacement and resettlement.

The Atlas of Migration in Europe

A Critical Geography of Migration Policies

Migreurop

In recent decades thousands of refugees and migrants have arrived in Europe having fled from countries in conflict, or in political or economic crisis. The 2015 migrant crisis caused a wave of panic across the European Union, exposing the inadequacies of the European system of borders, hospitality and immigration policies and leading many to call for reform. This Atlas sets out a revised critical geography of European migration policies, aiming to change our perceptions of borders, to map security controls across the continent, and above all to give a voice to the migrant. The atlas will be perfect for anyone interested in the plight of the migrant in Europe.

The Development Trap

How Thinking Big Fails the Poor

Adam D. Kiš

A wave of optimism is sweeping through the international aid and development industry, championed by leaders such as Jeffrey Sachs and Jim Yong Kim, who believe that poverty eradication could be within our grasp. Yet in stark opposition are those who believe that development intervention is hegemonic, paternalistic, and neocolonialist and must be done away with. In this book, the author sets out a middle ground, arguing that poverty will never be entirely eradicated, but that we can still achieve meaningful change on a smaller scale.

The Global North-South Atlas

Mapping Global Change

Marcin Wojciech Solarz

This innovative atlas deconstructs the contemporary image of a world divided into North and South depending on their wealth and development. Starting with the Brandt Commission's 'North-South Line', the book uses a range of colourful maps, charts, and regional profiles to argue the need for the international community to redraw the global map. This book will serve as a perfect textbook for students studying global divisions within geography, politics, economics, international relations, and development departments, as well as being a useful guide for researchers, and for those working in NGOs and government institutions.

Understanding Tuberculosis and its Control

Anthropological and Ethnographic Approaches

Edited by Helen Macdonald and Ian Harper

Drawing on ethnographic case studies from around the world, the volume considers: the relationship between global and national policies and their unintended effects; the emergence and impact of introducing new diagnostics; the reliance on and use of statistical numbers for representing tuberculosis and the politics of this; the impact of the disease on health workers as well as patients; the rise of drug resistant forms and issues of attempted control. Together the examples showcase the value of an anthropological understanding to demonstrate the broader bio-political and social dimensions of tuberculosis and attempts to deal with it.

Women, Gender and Conditional Cash Transfers

Interdisciplinary Perspectives from Studies of Bolsa Família

Edited by Teresa Sacchet, Federal University of Bahia, Brazil, Silvana Mariano, State University of Londrina, Brazil and Cássia Maria Carloto, State University of Londrina, Brazil

In Women, Gender and Conditional Cash Transfers, a multidisciplinary group of feminist scholars use survey data analysis, in-depth interviews, and ethnographic and archival research to explore to what extent Bolsa Família in Brazil contributes to women's autonomy and improves gender relations. The authors capture perspectives from different regions of Brazil to explain these regional social inequalities and provide historical and up-to-date insights of this program from a feminist perspective. This book will be of great interest not only to scholars of Latin American politics, but also to students of development policy, public policy and gender.

Postdevelopment in Practice

Alternatives, Economies, Ontologies

Edited by Elise Klein and Carlos Eduardo Morreo

Series: Routledge Critical Development Studies

In recent years advocates of postdevelopment and critical development studies have exposed areas where development institutions and practices have in fact served to make the lives of the poor worse. Postdevelopment in Practice looks at how postdevelopment principles actually work in practice, by revealing how actors in and out of development already follow postdevelopment practices, and suggesting alternative future pathways. Students, scholars and practitioners in critical development and postdevelopment studies will find this book an important guide to applying theory to practice.

A Theology of International Development

Thia Cooper

Series: Routledge Research in Religion and Development

This book offers a Christian theology of development, with practical solutions to bridge the gap and return to truly faith-based policies and practices. In applying theological thinking to development, the author argues that aid agencies need to address the entrenchment of unequal power relations, and embrace a holistic notion of development, defined by the needs of those most marginalized, instead of by a focus on economic growth. Overall this book is a powerful call to upend development practice as it currently exists, and it will be an important read for religion and development researchers, practitioners, and students.

Adapting Gender and Development to Local Religious Contexts

A Decolonial Approach to Domestic Violence in Ethiopia

Romina Istratii

Series: Routledge Research in Religion and Development

This book provides a critical and decolonial analysis of gender and development theory and practice in religious societies through a detailed ethnographic study of conjugal violence in Ethiopia. It presents an approach to gender-sensitive research and practice which is embedded in insiders' conceptual understandings as a basis to theorise about gender, assess the possible gendered underpinnings of local issues and design appropriate alleviation strategies. This book speaks to researchers and practitioners of gender, religion, and development in Africa, scholars of non-western Christianities and Ethiopian studies, and domestic violence researchers and practitioners.

African Environmental Crisis

A History of Science for Development

Gufu Oba

Series: Routledge Studies in African Development

This book explores how and why the idea of the African environmental crisis developed and persisted through colonial and post-colonial periods, and why it has been so influential in development discourse. Drawing on comparative socio-ecological perspectives of African peoples across the East African colonies and post-independent states, this book refutes the hypothesis that African peoples were responsible for environmental degradation. Instead, Gufu Oba argues that flawed imperial assumptions and short-term research projects generated an inaccurate view of the environment in Africa.

African Footballers in Europe

Migration, Community, and Give Back Behaviours

Ernest Yeboah Acheampong, University of Grenoble

Alpes-France, Malek Bouhaouala, University of Grenoble Alpes-France and Michel Raspaud, University of Grenoble Alpes-France

Series: Critical Research in Football

The book traces the social and economic evolution of African football, examining strategies and resources that players mobilise in their migrations, focussing on give back behaviours. It shines new light on contemporary migrations, labour markets in sport, and processes of development in Africa. It is a vital read for academics, researchers and students of sport sciences, sociology of sport, sport management, political sciences, sociology of Africa, migration studies, sociology of the labour market and economic sociology, and an important resource for professional organisations, NGOs, football agents, football administrators, federations, confederations, and governments.

African Initiated Christianity and the Decolonisation of Development

Sustainable Development in Pentecostal and Independent Churches

Edited by Philipp Öhlmann, Humboldt-Universität zu Berlin, Germany, Wilhelm Gräb, Humboldt-Universität zu Berlin, Germany and Marie-Luise Frost, Humboldt-Universität zu Berlin, Berlin

Series: Routledge Research in Religion and Development

This book investigates the substantial and growing contribution which African Independent and Pentecostal Churches are making to sustainable development in all its manifold forms. Moreover, this volume seeks to elucidate how these churches re-shape the very notion of sustainable development and contribute to the decolonization of development. The book will be useful for the community of scholars interested in religion and development as well as researchers within African studies, anthropology, development studies, political science, religious studies, sociology of religion, and theology. It will also be a key resource for development policy-makers and practitioners.

Alternatives to Neoliberal Peacebuilding and Statebuilding in Africa

Redie Bereketeab, The Nordic Africa Institute, Uppsala University, Sweden

Series: Routledge Studies in African Development

This book critically interrogates the neoliberal peacebuilding and statebuilding model, instead proposing a popular progressive model centred around the lived realities of African societies. By comparing and contrasting the dominant neoliberal peacebuilding and statebuilding model with a popular progressive model, the book seeks to empower locals (both elites and masses) to sit in the driver's seat and construct their own societies. As such, it is an important contribution to scholars, activists, policymakers, civil society organisations, NGOs and all those who are concerned with peace, stability and development across Africa and other developing countries.

China's New Role in African Politics

From Non-Intervention towards Stabilization?

Edited by Christof Hartmann and Nele Noesselt

Series: Routledge Global Cooperation Series

China's rise to global power status in recent decades has been accompanied with a deepening relationship with Africa. This book investigates the impact of Chinese policies on African politics, asking how China deals with political instability in Africa and in turn how Africans perceive China to be helping or hindering political stability. The book uses a range of different country cases to demonstrate China's varying approaches across the continent. The book will be of interest to researchers from across Political Science, International Relations, International Law and Economy, Security Studies, and African and Chinese Studies.

Buen Vivir and the Challenges to Capitalism in Latin America

Edited by Henry Veltmeyer and Edgar Zayago Lau

Series: Routledge Critical Development Studies

This book critically explores the development and resistance dynamics generated by conflicting forces of social change in Latin America. Divided into two parts, this book first provides a retrospective analysis of these forces of change, which are tied up in politics on both an international and a domestic scale. The second part goes on to focus on forward-looking challenges, particularly as relates to the worldview embedded in the indigenous notion of Vivir Bien – the concept of 'living well' in social solidarity and harmony with nature. This collection is key reading for advanced scholars and researchers in the field.

Climate Change, Disasters, and Internal Displacement in Asia and the Pacific

A Human Rights-Based Approach

Edited by Matthew Scott and Albert Salamanca

Series: Routledge Studies in Development, Displacement and Resettlement

This book examines how states in eight countries across Asia and the Pacific address internal displacement in the context of disasters and climate change. The collection adopts a human rights-based approach, investigating the role of law and policy in preventing displacement, protecting people who are displaced, and engendering durable solutions. The cases in the book reflect critically on the term 'displacement', and the wider normative framework within which this phenomenon is conceptualised. The book will be of interest to students and practitioners working at the intersection of human rights, human mobility, development, disaster management and climate change.

Contemporary European Emigration

Situating Integration in New Destinations

Edited by Brigitte Suter and Lisa Åkesson

Series: Routledge Studies in Development, Mobilities and Migration

At a time when European unity is politically challenged by the question of immigration, it is easy to forget that many Europeans are in fact leaving the continent. Drawing on the experiences of contemporary European emigrants from a range of countries, this book sheds light on how global economic, political and social transformations spur new forms of migration and mobility experiences. Delving into accounts of social integration and transnational and local connectivity, the book provides enticing insights into how Europeans see themselves in the world. ## Cultural Resistance and Security from Below

Power and Escape through Capoeira

Edited by Zoë Marriage

Series: Routledge Studies in Development and Society

This book uses the Afro-Brazilian art of capoeira to examine how security has been pursued from below and what significance this has for security analysis and policy. The book brings the musical and corporeal narrative from capoeira into conversation with debates on security; these have typically been dominated by northern, white, military voices, and as a result, the perspective of the weaker player is routinely overlooked in security literature and policy making. This book will be of interest to scholars and students in the fields of security studies, development studies, political science and international studies.

Decolonisation and Regional Geopolitics

South Africa and the 'Congo Crisis', 1960-1965

Edited by Lazlo Pasmemiers, University of the Free State, South Africa

Series: The Routledge Global 1960s and 1970s Series

This book argues that as much as the 'Congo crisis' (1960-1965) was a Cold War battleground, so too was it a battleground for Southern Africa's decolonisation. This book provides a transnational history of African decolonisation, apartheid diplomacy, and Southern African nationalist movements. It answers three central questions. First, what was the nature of South African involvement in the Congo crisis? Second, what was the rationale for this involvement? Third, how did South Africans perceive the crisis?

Innovatively, the book shifts the focus on the Congo crisis away from Cold War intervention and centres it around African decolonisation and regional geopolitics.

Democratic Education in a Globalized World

A Normative Theory

Julian Culp

Series: Routledge International Studies in the Philosophy of Education

This book argues that the right to education is a matter of global democratic justice. If citizens are expected to participate in domestic, inter- and transnational processes of opinion formation and political engagement, they must be educated, supported by public policy systems that recognise the importance of education in forming citizens fit to solve global and local problems. Education and Democratic Justice offers a powerful articulation and defence of global educational justice, and will be of interest to researchers across the fields of education, public policy, philosophy, development, and

Development and Poverty Reduction

A Global Comparative Perspective

Edited by Yongnian Zheng and Jiwei Qian

Series: China Policy Series

Although the absolute number of poor people in the world has declined significantly in recent decades, poverty reduction continues to be a very important issue. Factors contributing towards poverty reduction include economic growth, economic integration and specific poverty-reduction programmes, which are often initiated by Western countries. This book considers poverty reduction from a global perspective. It highlights in particular how the issues are perceived from a non-Western perspective and especially how the rise of China is both having a profound impact on poverty reduction globally and also changing the overall way in which development and poverty reduction is approached.

Development In Modern Africa

Past and Present Perspectives

Edited by Martin S. Shanguhya and Toyin Falola, University of Texas at Austin, USA

Series: Global Africa

Development in Modern Africa: Past and Present Perspectives contributes to our understanding of Africa's experiences with the development process. It does so by adopting a historical and contemporary analysis of this experience. The book is set within the context of critiques on development in Africa that have yielded two general categories of analyses: scepticism and pessimism.

While not overlooking the shortcomings of development, the themes in the book express an optimistic view of Africa's development experiences, highlighting elements that can be tapped into to enhance the condition of African populations and their states.

Economic Development in Ghana and Malaysia

A Comparative Analysis

Samuel K. Andoh, Bernice J. deGannes Scott and Grace Ofori-Abebrese

Series: Routledge Explorations in Development Studies

Economic Development in Ghana and Malaysia investigates why two countries that appeared to be at more or less the same stage of economic development at one point in time have diverged so substantially. It examines the pre-colonial and colonial economies of both countries, and the economic policies pursued after independence. In doing so, it aims to identify policies which might have contributed to Malaysia's development, and those which might have slowed Ghana's.

This detailed comparative analysis will be useful to students and researchers of development economics as well as public

Gender, Development, and the State in India

Carole Spary, University of Nottingham, UK

Series: Routledge Research on Gender in Asia Series

Exploring how three factors – institutions, discourse and agency – influence the formation of state policy on gender and development in India post-1990, this book examines how this issue plays out at multiple levels of governance – at both the national and the subnational (state) level in federal India.

This book will be of interest to scholars interested in the politics of gender equality, state feminism, and gender mainstreaming; federalism and multi-level governance; development studies and gender in South Asia.

Europe and the Refugee Response

A Crisis of Values?

Edited by Elżbieta M. Goździak, Izabella Main and Brigitte Suter

Series: Routledge Studies in Development, Mobilities and Migration

This book explores how the rising numbers of refugees entering Europe from 2015 onwards played into fears of cultural, religious, and ethnic differences across the continent. At a time when debates on refugees and European norms continue to rage, this book provides an important interdisciplinary analysis which will be of interest to European policy makers, and researchers across the fields of migration, law, philosophy, anthropology, sociology, and political science.

Global Business Cycles and Developing Countries

Eri Ikeda

Series: Routledge Explorations in Development Studies

This book investigates how global business cycles impact the economies of developing countries. Global business cycles, the wave-like movements of economic expansion followed by contraction in aggregate economic activities, impact all economies comprising the global economy. The patterns being shown in developing countries correspond increasingly to those in the global north, and yet there is a relative dearth of studies exploring whether global business cycles exist and how they operate in developing economies. This book will be an important read for researchers and upper-level students of development economics and international political economy.

Government and NGOs in South Asia

Local Collaboration in Bangladesh

Mohammad Jahangir Hossain Mojumder and Pranab Kumar Panday

Series: Routledge Studies in South Asian Politics

This book analyses efforts of Bangladeshi government and NGOs to strengthen local governance and identifies the challenges posed by collaboration with NGOs. Presenting a dominantly qualitative study, the analysis explores whether engagement between the Sharique strengthening local governance project and the Union Parishads has translated into success. Bridging a gap in the Development Studies literature, this book presents new findings on the collaboration of NGOs at the local level. It will be of interest to academics working in the field of South Asian Studies, Development Studies and Asian Politics.

Human Capital in Gender and Development

Sydney Calkin, Durham University, UK

Series: Routledge Studies in Gender and Global Politics

Human Capital in Gender and Development addresses timely feminist debates about the relationship between feminism, neoliberalism, and international development. The book engages with human capital theory, a labour economics theory associated with the Chicago School that now animates a wide range of political and economic governance. The book argues that human capital theory has been instrumental in constructing an economic vision of gender equality as a tool for economic growth, and girls and women of the global South as the quintessential entrepreneurs of the post-global financial crisis era.

Humanitarianism and the Quantification of Human Needs

Minimal Humanity

Joël Glasman

This book provides the first historical inquiry into the quantification of needs in humanitarian assistance. Ultimately the book argues that we cannot understand the global humanitarian aid movement, if we do not understand how humanitarian agencies made human suffering commensurable across borders in the first place. This important historical enquiry into the universal nature of human suffering will be an important read for humanitarian researchers and practitioners, as well as readers with an interest in international history and development.

Ideas in the History of Economic Development

The Case of Peripheral Countries

Edited by Estrella Trincado, Complutense University of Madrid, Spain, Andrés Lazzarini, National Scientific and Technical Research Council (CONICET), Argentina and Denis Melnik, National Research University Higher School of Economics, Russia

Series: Routledge Studies in the History of Economics

This edited volume examines the relationship between economic ideas, economic policies and development institutions, analysing the cases of 11 peripheral countries in Europe, Latin America and Asia across the 19th and 20th centuries.

It sheds light on the obstacles that have prevented the sustained economic growth of these countries and examines the origins of national and regional approaches to development. The chapters present a fascinating insight into the ideas and visions in the different locations, with the overarching categories of economic nationalism and economic liberalism, and how they have influenced development outcomes.

India at 70

Multidisciplinary Approaches

Edited by Ruth Maxey, University of Nottingham, UK and Paul McGarr, University of Nottingham, UK

Series: Routledge Studies in Modern History

India at 70: Multidisciplinary Approaches examines Indian independence in August 1947 and its multiple afterlives. With 9 contributions by a range of international scholars, it interrogates 1947 and its complex, bloody aftermath in historical, political and aesthetic terms. This original collection conceives of Indian independence in bold and innovative ways by moving across national boundaries and disciplinary, geopolitical and linguistic landscapes; and by examining a wealth of under-researched primary material, both recent and historical. India at 70 is a unique and indispensable contribution to Indian history, literary and cultural studies.

Industrial Tree Plantations and the Land Rush in China

Implications for Global Land Grabbing

Edited by Yunan Xu, International Institute of Social Studies, The Netherlands

Series: Routledge Studies in Global Land and Resource Grabbing

This book analyses the political and economic causes, mechanisms and impacts of the industrial tree plantation boom in China. Based on extensive primary data, this book concentrates on the political economy of the sector's expansion with a focus on the recent and dramatic agrarian transformation involving the land-labour nexus, the impact on villagers' livelihoods, the role of the state, and political reactions from below. The book questions the stereotypical portrayal of local communities as the excluded villager.

This book will be of great interest to students and scholars of land grabbing, rural development and agrarian transformations, as well as Chinese development.

International Development and Local Faith Actors

Ideological and Cultural Encounters

Edited by Kathryn Kraft and Olivia J. Wilkinson
Series: Routledge Research in Religion and Development

This book explores the interplay and dialogue between faith communities and the humanitarian-development community. The book demonstrates that partnerships between humanitarian-development practitioners and religious communities can be mutually beneficial exchanges, but that there are also frequently pitfalls along the way and opportunities for lessons to be learned by each party. This book is an important contribution to the growing body of literature on faith and development, and will be useful both to researchers, and to practitioners working with faith communities.

Latin America and Policy Diffusion

From Import to Export

Edited by Osmany Porto de Oliveira, Federal University of São Paulo, Brazil, Cecilia Osorio Gonnet, Universidad Alberto Hurtado, Chile, Sergio Montero, Universidad de los Andes, Colombia and Cristiane Kerches da Silva Leite, Universidade de São Paulo, Brazil

Series: Routledge Studies in Latin American Politics

Despite Latin America's new role as a policy "exporter", little is known about its dynamics, causes, and effects. Why do Latin American policies have been diffused inside and outside the region? Which actors are involved? What driving forces affect these processes? This innovative collection offers a new perspective on the policy diffusion phenomena. Drawing on different examples from Latin American experiences in urban local policies and national social policies, experts present a new framework to study this phenomenon centered on the mobilization of ideas, interests and discourses for policy diffusion.

Marxism, Postcolonial Theory, and the Future of Critique

Critical Engagements with Benita Parry

Edited by Sharae Deckard, University College Dublin, Ireland and Rashmi Varma, Warwick University, UK

Series: Routledge Research in Postcolonial Literatures

Focusing on the intellectual legacy of Benita Parry, this book explores new directions for postcolonial studies, Marxist literary criticism, and world literature in the contemporary moment, seeking to re-imagine the field, and new possibilities for Left critique. As a leading dissident of the poststructuralist turn within postcolonial studies, Parry has reinvigorated the field by bringing critical questions of resistance and struggle to bear on aesthetic forms. The book offers cutting-edge work on peripheral aesthetics, the world-literary system, critiques of global capitalism and capitalist modernity, and the resurgence of Marxism, communism, and liberation theory by a range of scholars.

Migration, Development and Social Change in the Himalayas

An Ethnographic Village Study

Madleina Daehnhardt

Series: Routledge Studies in Development, Mobilities and Migration

This book teases out the reasons for, and the socioeconomic impacts of, different types of migration on contemporary rural households and individuals. The author creatively depicts the dynamic microcosm of one village in the North Indian Kumaun Himalayas, near the border with Chinese Tibet, giving voice to the life stories of a range of migrants. The theoretical implications of the study are teased out to inform our understanding of rural-urban migration trends and impacts more generally, and as such the book will be of interest to researchers of the South Asian region, but also of internal migration in the global context.

Negotiating Religion and Development

Identity Construction and Contention in Bolivia

Arnhild Leer-Helgesen, University of Agder, Norway
Series: Routledge Research in Religion and Development

This book argues that relationships between religion and development in faith-based development work are constructed through repeated processes of negotiation. Faith-based development involves a complex interplay between theological interpretations and theories of human development; between identities as professional practitioners and as believers; between different religious traditions at local, regional and international levels; and between institutional structures and individual agency. Drawing on a study of Christian faith-based development work in the Bolivian Andes, this book will interest researchers working in development studies and religious

New Geographies of Global Policy-Making

South-South Networks and Rural Development Strategies

Carolina Milhorance, University of Brasilia, Brazil

Series: Routledge Advances in International Relations and Global Politics

In this book, Carolina Milhorance examines the content, process and consequences of the internationalisation of Brazil's rural public policy instruments. Brazil earned wide international recognition in the early 2000s for its agricultural modernization and social policies; its increasing influence illustrated the specific political interests of coalitions that are embedded in domestic and international struggles. Drawing on extensive field research -- including more than 280 interviews -- Milhorance analyses the effects of the internationalisation of Brazilian policy solutions on national and local political systems in recipient countries, highlighting specifically the case of Mozambique.

Peace and Rural Development in Colombia

The Window for Distributive Change in Negotiated Transitions

Andrés García Trujillo

Series: Routledge Studies in Latin American Politics

In Peace and Rural Development in Colombia Andrés García Trujillo investigates whether peace agreements geared towards terminating internal armed conflicts trigger rural distributive changes. García Trujillo shows that the peace agreement in Colombia opened an exceptional window for addressing rural inequality yet this change was severely constrained by opposing actors within and outside the government. The original theoretical framework and empirically rich analysis make this book an indispensable read to scholars and practitioners who wish to gain an understanding on the political economy of peace-making, policy change and rural development in

Political Financing in Developing Countries

A Case from Ghana

Joseph Luna

Series: Routledge Explorations in Development Studies

This book argues that to fully grasp the decision-making of politicians and political actors in developing countries, we must first understand how politicians finance their campaigns for office—and to whom they are indebted and expected to repay. Overall, the book argues that scholars of development should advance research on political finance to identify and then alleviate the games that decision makers must play to survive in the political sphere. Political Financing in Developing Countries will be an important and timely resource for scholars across development studies, politics, economics, and African Studies.

Politics and Conflict in Governance and Planning

Theory and Practice

Edited by Ayda Eraydin, Middle East Technical University, Turkey and Klaus Frey, Federal University of ABC, Brazil

Series: Routledge Research in Urban Politics and Policy

According to existing theoretical debates, contemporary planning seeks to replace resentment and conflict with compromise, mutual understanding and consensus. Switching the focus to how strategies and forms of depoliticized governance can be repoliticised through renewed planning mechanisms and sociopolitical mobilization, this book offers a critical evaluation of manifold ways in which the political dimension is reflected in the context of neoliberal spatial governance. Politics and Conflict in Governance and Planning is a critical and much needed contribution to the planning literature and its incorporation of

Critical Branding

Postcolonial Studies and the Market

Caroline Koegler, University of Münster, Germany
Series: Routledge Research in Postcolonial Literatures

Merging concepts from business studies, postcolonial studies, queer studies, and literary and cultural studies in an informed way, Critical Branding: Postcolonial Studies and the Market sets on a thorough theoretical footing a range of categories which, while increasingly current, remain surprisingly obscure, such as the market, marketing, branding, and market forces. It provides new concepts with which to think of the market as a dimension of practice, such as brand narratives, brand acts, and brand politics. Critical Branding is a timely contribution that explores how diversely postcolonial studies and the market intersect, for better and for worse.

Post-Conflict Social and Economic Recovery in Timor-Leste

Redemptive Legacies

Andrew McWilliam

Series: The Modern Anthropology of Southeast Asia

Based on extensive comparative literature and field-based empirical research, the book explores the protracted process of cultural and economic revival following a generation-long period of military repression and a sustained struggle for national independence. With a focus on the experiences of Fataluku ethno-linguistic communities in Timor-Leste, the study offers nuanced perspectives on the legacies of conflict and local forms of governance, the revitalisation of customary exchange and ancestral religion.

Practices of Citizenship in East Africa

Perspectives from Philosophical Pragmatism

Edited by Katariina Holma and Tiina Kontinen, University of Jyväskylä, Finland

Series: Routledge Explorations in Development Studies

Practices of Citizenship in East Africa uses insights from philosophical pragmatism to explore how to strengthen citizenship within developing countries. Using a bottom-up approach, the book investigates the various everyday practices in which citizenship habits are formed and reformulated. This book will be of interest to scholars within the fields of development, governance, and educational philosophy. Practitioners and policy-makers working on inclusive citizenship and interventions to strengthen civil society will also find the concepts explored in this book useful to their work.

Public Policy Lessons from the AIDS Response in Africa

Fred Eboko

Series: Routledge Studies in African Development

This book examines how the interplay between national state dynamics in Africa and the global political arena has shaped the global AIDS response, and in this context develops a framework for analysing public policy action more broadly in contemporary Africa. By articulating global and national connections and contributing a critical perspective grounded in African scholarship and French political science, the author builds an ambitious framework with the potential to enable coherent and effective public policy action in Africa. This book will be of interest to scholars and students, as well as policy-level practitioners in the areas of global health and development.

Public Probity and Corruption in Chile

Patricio Silva

Series: Routledge Corruption and Anti-Corruption Studies

In most Latin American countries key officials and political figures have been involved in big corruption scandals in the last decade. However, instead of analysing notoriously bad cases, this book focuses on Chile, which shows the lowest levels of corruption in the region. The book presents a long-term historical analysis of Chile's low level of tolerance for public cases of corruption, providing valuable insights for other countries in the region on the factors and actors which can help to prevent public corruption. As such, this book will be of interest to researchers of corruption and public probity both in Chile and further afield.

Reducing Urban Violence in the Global South

Towards Safe and Inclusive Cities

Edited by Jennifer Erin Salahub, Markus Gottsbacher, John de Boer and Mayssam D. Zaaroura

Series: Routledge Studies in Cities and Development

This book seeks to identify the drivers of urban violence in the cities of the Global South and how they relate to and interact with poverty and inequalities. Drawing on the findings of an ambitious five-year, 15-project research programme supported by Canada's International Development Research Centre and the UK's Department for International Development, the book explores what works, and what doesn't, to prevent and reduce violence in urban centres. The fresh perspectives and insights offered by this book will be useful to scholars and students of development and urban violence, as well as to practitioners and policymakers working on urban violence reduction programmes.

Refugee Encounters at the Turkish-Syrian Border

Antakya at the Crossroads

Sule Can

Series: Routledge Borderlands Studies

The Turkish-Syrian borderlands host almost half of the Syrian refugees, with an estimated 1.5 million people arriving in the area following the outbreak of the Syrian civil war. This book investigates the ongoing negotiations of ethnicity, religion and state at the border, as refugees struggle to settle and to navigate their encounters with the Turkish state and with different sectarian groups. This book's detailed analysis will be of interest to anthropologists, geographers, sociologists, historians, and middle eastern studies scholars who are working on questions of displacement, cultural boundaries and the politics of Civil War in border regions.

Rethinking Ownership of Development in Africa

T.D. Harper-Shipman

Series: Routledge Studies in African Development

This book demonstrates how instead of empowering the communities they work with, the jargon of development ownership often actually serves to perpetuate the centrality of multilateral organizations and international donors in African development, awarding a fairly minimal role to local partners. The findings from this book make an important contribution to critical development debates which question international development as an enterprise capable of empowering developing nations. ## Science and Development in Thai and South Asian Buddhism

David L. Gosling

Series: Routledge Contemporary Southeast Asia Series

This book, by a leading authority on the subject, considers the role of Thai Buddhist religious people in development within Thailand. It discusses how Thai Buddhism has evolved theologically and in its organisation to allow this, examines various examples of Buddhist people's engagement in development projects, and assesses how the situation is likely to unfold going forward. In addition, the book considers the relationship between science and religion in Thai Buddhism and also some aspects of the parallel situation in Sri Lanka.

Spatial Modernities

Geography, Narrative, Imaginaries

Edited by Johannes Riquet and Elizabeth Kollmann

Series: Routledge Interdisciplinary Perspectives on Literature

This collection of essays offers a series of reflections on the specific literary and cultural forms that can be seen as the product of modernity's spatial transformations. The book offers a broad perspective on the narrative and poetic dimensions of the modern discourses and imaginaries that have shaped our current geographical sensibilities. In the early twenty-first century, we are still grappling with the spatial effects of 'early' and 'high' modern developments, and the contemporary crises revolving around political boundaries and geopolitical orders in many parts of the world have intensified spatial anxieties.

The Power of Civil Society in the Middle East and North Africa

Peace-building, Change, and Development

Edited by Ibrahim Natil, Chiara Pierobon and Lilian Tauber

Series: Routledge Explorations in Development Studies

This book investigates the power of civil society in the Middle East and North Africa, in the context of the post-Arab Spring era, as well as more long-standing challenges and constraints in the region. Over the course of the book, the authors investigate how the sector has succeeded in achieving its own objectives despite these shifting conditions, the restrictive political environment and the complexity of the sociocultural and economic context. This book will be of particular interest to researchers working on development, peace-building, conflict resolution, civil society, and politics within the MENA region.

The Sarvodaya Movement

Holistic Development and Risk Governance in Sri Lanka

Praveena Rajkopal, Author asked for GBP payments on EPF
 Series: Routledge Research in Religion and Development

The book provides an important case study of how local cultures, religions and spiritualities can enhance development activities, and provide helpful frameworks for contemporary societies facing the pressures of neoliberalism. It specifically traces how the influential Sri Lankan Sarvodaya Movement has deployed concepts of spirituality-based holistic development to help local communities with post-tsunami reconstruction and redevelopment. This book will be of interest to scholars of Development and Humanitarian Studies, Religious Studies, and South Asian Studies.

Transnational Social Mobilisation and Minority Rights

Identity, Advocacy and Norms

Corinne Lennox
 Series: Routledge Studies in Development and Society

This book explores the ways in which minority groups across the world are reshaping the international minority rights protection system. Among academic audiences, this book will appeal to those researching minority rights, social movements, global governance, discrimination and multiculturalism from legal, political, sociological and critical theory perspectives. It will also interest practitioners and activists working on minority rights and the challenges of norm compliance, socio-economic inclusion and governance.

The Desertmakers

Travel, War, and the State in Latin America

Javier Uriarte, Stony Brook University, USA

Series: Routledge Research in Travel Writing

This book studies how the rhetoric of travel introduces conceptualizations of space and time in scenarios of war during the late 19th century, in Argentina, Brazil, Paraguay, and Uruguay. By examining accounts of war and travel in the context of the consolidation of state apparatuses, Uriarte underlines the role that war (in connection to empire and capital) has played in the Latin American process of modernization and state formation, analyzing how national spaces are reconfigured, reimagined, and reappropriated. Combining literary analysis, critical geography, political science, and history, this book will be of interest to Latin American literature, Travel Writing, and neocolonialism.

Routledge Handbook of Sport for Development and Peace

Edited by Holly Collison, Loughborough University, UK, Simon C. Darnell, University of Toronto, Canada, Richard Giulianotti, Loughborough University, UK and P. David Howe, Loughborough University, Leicestershire, UK

Series: Routledge Studies in Sport Development

Sport and physical activity are now regularly used to promote social and economic development, peace-building and conflict resolution, on an international scale. The emergence of the 'Sport for Development and Peace' (SDP) sector, comprised of governments, NGOs, sport organizations and others, reveals a high level of institutionalization of this activity, while SDP now constitutes an important element of the scholarly analysis of sport. This volume discusses the central elements of SDP and provides a series of case studies in key research areas in the field. It is the most comprehensive and extensive study published on this topic to date.

Routledge Handbook of Environmental Displacement and Migration

Edited by Robert McLeman, Wilfrid Laurier University, Canada and François Gemenne, University of Versailles Saint-Quentin-en-Yvelines, France and the University of Liège, Belgium

Series: Routledge International Handbooks

The Routledge Handbook of Environmental Displacement and Migration will provide a state-of-the-science review of research on how environmental variability and change influence current and future global migration patterns and possibly trigger large-scale population displacements. The compendium will explain theoretical, conceptual, and empirical developments that have been made in recent years; describe their origins and connections to broader topics including migration research, development studies, and international public policy and law; and, highlight emerging areas where new and/or additional research and reflection are warranted

Routledge Handbook of Migration and Development

Edited by Tanja Bastia, University of Manchester, UK and Ronald Skeldon

Series: Routledge International Handbooks

The links between migration and development can be traced back to the post-war period, if not further, yet it is only in the last 15 years that the 'migration-development nexus' has risen to prominence for academics and policy makers. The Routledge Handbook of Migration and Development provides an interdisciplinary, agenda-setting survey of the field, charting current and future trends in migration and development research. Given the increasing importance of migration in both international development and current affairs, this book will be of interest both to policy makers and to students and researchers of geography, development studies, political science, sociology and economics.

Routledge Handbook of South-South Relations

Edited by Elena Fiddian-Qasmiyeh, University College London, UK and Patricia Daley, University of Oxford, UK.

Series: Routledge International Handbooks

This Handbook critically explores the diverse ways of conceptualising and researching 'South-South relations', and explores broader questions on the nature and implications of conducting research in and about the global South. The complexities of defining 'the South' will be examined throughout the Handbook, which will offer both a state-of-the-art review of key academic and policy debates on South-South relations, and lay out a research agenda for the next 5-10 years. This Handbook will be of great interest to scholars and post-graduate students in Anthropology, Area Studies, Development Studies, History, Geography, Politics, International Relations, Postcolonial Studies, and Sociology.

Routledge Handbook of the Study of the Commons

Edited by Blake Hudson, Jonathan Rosenbloom and Dan Cole

The study of the commons has expanded dramatically since the late 1960s and the subsequent work of Ostrom popularized the dilemma faced by users of common pool resources. This comprehensive Handbook serves as a unique synthesis and resource for understanding how analytical frameworks developed within the literature assist in understanding the nature and management of commons resources. It is inter-disciplinary and will appeal to a wide range of advanced students in environmental studies, natural resources, law, economics, politics, geography and sociology.

Routledge Handbook on the UN and Development

Edited by Stephen Browne and Thomas G Weiss

This Handbook explores the activities of the UN development system (UNDS). Contributions focus on the role of the UNDS in sustainable social, economic and environmental development, describing how the UNDS interacts with the other major functions of the UN system, and how it performs operationally in the context of the new development agenda focused on the 17 Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs). Comprised of chapters by knowledgeable and authoritative UN experts, this book provides cutting-edge and up-to-date research on the strengths and weaknesses of the UNDS, with each chapter focusing on different operational and ideological aspects.

The Routledge Handbook of Gender and Development

Edited by Anne Coles, Leslie Gray and Janet Momsen

The Routledge Handbook of Gender and Development provides a comprehensive statement and reference point for gender and development policy making and practice in an international and multi-disciplinary context. Specifically, it provides critical reviews and appraisals of the current state of gender and development and considers future trends. It includes theoretical and practical approaches as well as empirical studies. The international reach and scope of the Handbook and the contributors' experiences allow engagement with and reflection upon these bridging and linking themes, as well as the examining the politics and policy of how we think about and practice gender and

The Routledge Companion to Humanitarian Action

Edited by Roger Mac Ginty and Jenny H Peterson

The Companion on Humanitarian Action addresses the political, ethical, legal and practical issues which influence reactions to humanitarian crisis. It does so by exploring the daily dilemmas faced by a range of actors, including policy makers, aid workers, the private sector and the beneficiaries of aid and by challenging common perceptions regarding humanitarian crisis and the policies put in place to address these. Through such explorations, it provides practitioners and scholars with the knowledge needed to both understand and improve upon current forms of humanitarian action. As opposed to addressing specific programmes, it will explore five themes seen as relevant to

Routledge Paperbacks Direct

Bringing you the cream of our hardback publishing at paperback prices

This exciting new initiative makes the best of our hardback publishing available in paperback format for authors and individuals customers.

Routledge Paperbacks Direct
is an ever-evolving programme with new titles being added regularly.

To take a look at the titles available, visit our website: www.routledgepaperbacksdirect.com

At Routledge we always look for innovative ways to support and collaborate with our readers and the organizations they represent.

If you or your organization would like to discuss partnership opportunities, from reciprocal marketing activities to commercial enterprises, please do get in touch.
