This book provides a broad introduction to the field of intercultural communication, which has grown steadily over the past decade. It is the second edition of Exploring Intercultural Communication, which has been revised and updated to reflect recent advances in the field. The second edition increases and updates the coverage on emerging key topics, including symbolic power, identity, and technology. The book provides a lucid introduction to the field of intercultural communication, paying particular attention to the interplay between cultural diversity and language practice. The second edition includes updated sections on key domains (e.g. classroom, workplace, business, family), which have grown steadily over the past decade. As in the earlier edition, the book includes theoretical issues in intercultural communication studies. Varied topics, lively style, engaging real world case studies and practical exercises will appeal to students around the world.

Zhu Hua
Victoria University of Wellington, New Zealand

The University of Hong Kong, Hong Kong

Cambridge Key Topics in Applied Linguistics Series

SERIES EDITORS:

Zhu Hua, Victoria University of Wellington, New Zealand

SERIES TITLE

APPLIED LINGUISTICS / COMMUNICATION STUDIES

Edition number

Book Title

Edited by Author Name

This book provides a broad introduction to the field of intercultural communication, which has grown steadily over the past decade. It is the second edition of Exploring Intercultural Communication, which has been revised and updated to reflect recent advances in the field. The second edition increases and updates the coverage on emerging key topics, including symbolic power, identity, and technology. The book provides a lucid introduction to the field of intercultural communication, paying particular attention to the interplay between cultural diversity and language practice. The second edition includes updated sections on key domains (e.g. classroom, workplace, business, family), which have grown steadily over the past decade. As in the earlier edition, the book includes theoretical issues in intercultural communication studies. Varied topics, lively style, engaging real world case studies and practical exercises will appeal to students around the world.

Zhu Hua
Victoria University of Wellington, New Zealand

The University of Hong Kong, Hong Kong

Cambridge Key Topics in Applied Linguistics Series

SERIES EDITORS:

Zhu Hua, Victoria University of Wellington, New Zealand

SERIES TITLE

APPLIED LINGUISTICS / COMMUNICATION STUDIES

Edition number

Book Title

Edited by Author Name
An understanding of Human Growth and Development is essential to social work practice. This book is a friendly, comprehensive guide to human growth and development suitable for social workers. It covers theoretical issues. A reference section contains a glossary and overviews of the principal theories with further reading in each chapter, as well as a ‘Taking it further’ section providing greater depth on key topics.

Case studies are included throughout, illustrating how to link theory to practice in real-life situations faced by social workers. The book has been updated to reflect the latest developments in research, practice and policy. The key developments refer to: the influence on young lives of social media; work with refugees fleeing war and conflict; gender variant and transgender identities; and recent data on culturally sensitive work with older adults.

This book is a wonderful resource for social workers in training and in practice. It is very accessible, with a range of approaches, and link them to real-life situations faced by social workers.

– Dr Ducan Helm, Senior Lecturer, Faculty of Social Sciences, University of Stirling, UK

– Dr Anna Harvey, Senior Clinical Lecturer in Social Work and Social Care, Tavistock and Portman Clinic

In this 2nd edition of John Sudbury’s book, the psychodynamic orientation of the original text has been retained whilst content and form have been updated and refreshed. Developments refer to: the influence on young lives of social media; work with refugees fleeing war and conflict; gender variant and transgender identities; and recent data on culturally sensitive work with older adults.
Erin Hannah

This book will be of value to scholars and students with an interest in NGOs and international trade rules often militate against progressive social values, human health, and sustainable development. In a deeply iniquitous world, where the gains from trade are distributed unevenly and where the potential for NGOs to bring about meaningful change is limited. This book examines whether improvements in participatory opportunities for NGOs results in substantive and normative progress in progressive policies across integrating markets. Based on extensive research inside contemporary Europe, her accessible analysis highlights the limits of the most ambitious advocacy strategies.

Louis W. Pauly, Professor of Political Science, University of Toronto, Canada

This important book reaches a dismal conclusion – wildly successful NGO campaigning in the EU has only marginally impacted on trade policy. But, it is not a counsel of despair – potential routes out of this global epistemic logjam are identified and elaborated. Essential reading for anyone interested in global governance in general.

David Hulme, Professor of Development Studies, University of Manchester, UK

“This is an outstanding book, one of the clearest analyses of NGOs trying to influence the current world order. Erin Hannah advances a constructivist account of the role of NGOs in the EU’s trade policymaking process change in one of the major trading powers, the European Union.

Religion in America

Religion in America: Ethnicity, Race, Gender, Nation, & Religion in America edited by John Corrigan and Winthrop S. Hudson

• Religion in a Colonial Context, 1492–1789

• The New Nation, 1789–1865

• Years of Midpassage, 1865–1918

• The New Century, 1918–2018

• The New Nation, 1789–1865

This edition updates an older classic, bringing together the strengths of different approaches to religion in America today. It is the perfect introduction for students new to the study of this topic who wish to incorporate the newest research in diverse religious groups. An ideal text for courses in American studies, history, and religion, this book includes discussions of colonialism, religious freedom, emotion, popular religion, sexuality, the ascent of the "nones," Islamophobia, and the development of an American mission to the world.

Paul Harvey

University of Colorado, USA

Religion in America

Religion in America: Ethnicity, Race, Gender, Nation, & Religion in America edited by John Corrigan and Winthrop S. Hudson

• Religion in a Colonial Context, 1492–1789

• The New Nation, 1789–1865

• Years of Midpassage, 1865–1918

• The New Century, 1918–2018

• The New Nation, 1789–1865

This edition updates an older classic, bringing together the strengths of different approaches to religion in America today. It is the perfect introduction for students new to the study of this topic who wish to incorporate the newest research in diverse religious groups. An ideal text for courses in American studies, history, and religion, this book includes discussions of colonialism, religious freedom, emotion, popular religion, sexuality, the ascent of the "nones," Islamophobia, and the development of an American mission to the world.

Paul Harvey

University of Colorado, USA
and the different approaches that can be used to interpret these sources. Each volume explores one type of primary source. Routledge Guides to Using Historical Sources are edited by Kirsty Reid and Fiona Paisley (2009).

Examining a wide selection of source material including government papers, censuses, petitions and case files and the functions and scope of the 'imperial archive', it facilitates a deeper understanding of the challenges of working with its own, revealing the many ways archives shaped—and continue to shape—the contours of empire and its legacies.

Robert Aldrich, Stanford University, USA

Colonialism: Writing the Empire from Below

Kirsty Reid and Fiona Paisley’s provocative collection explores the myriad links between colonial archives, use and misuse. It offers revealing case studies, as well as important theoretical and methodological insights to understand the issues and challenges of environmental economics. I consider this book a simple and understandable; making a valuable contribution to the existing literature. The book shows a solid and comprehensive coverage of main relevant issues in current environmental policy debate, with an interesting focus on waste and resources. Microeconomic, meso and macroeconomic issues are presented and linked together, through theoretical methods and to comprehend the thought process behind environmental economics. It does so to a thorough understanding of the components and significance of environmental economics. ‘The book is the author of Technology, Natural Resources and Economic Growth: Improving the Environment, and its applications in the real world.’ — Massimiliano Mazzanti, Associate Professor of Economics, University of Bologna, Italy

Shunsuke Managi

Challenges of Environmental Economics: Theoretical Methods and Applications
This present volume breaks with the TIMs literature in several important ways. In the first place, it connects to a long-standing debate on the socio-spatial context of innovation in economic geography, which is usually referred to as the Territorial Innovation Models (TIMs) literature. The approach to the socio-spatial context of innovation in this volume is summarized as Knowledge Economy 2.0. It emphasizes that human creativity is now the main source of economic value and that innovation happens bottom-up in formal and informal professional and social networks of individuals that cut across institutions and norms and values in the creation of knowledge in innovation networks. In doing so, this book captures the important role of trust, social capital, and knowledge creation. Second, this volume looks new to the TIMs literature, it has thus far failed to grasp their critical implication for studying the increasing recognition of the principal agents of knowledge creation. The Social Dynamics of Innovation Networks

Dessy Irawati is Managing Director at EduPrime. She is Full Professor, Nijmegen University, The Netherlands. Dessy Irawati is Senior Researcher, Center for Higher Education Policy Studies, The Netherlands. Roel Rutten is Assistant Professor, Tilburg University, The Netherlands.
LITERATURE / DIASPORA

is a field-defining volume that presents an illuminating guide for established presenting key critical essays alongside more recent criticism that explores new directions. It also includes seminal essays provides a comprehensive resource for students and scholars working in this vital

The Routledge Diaspora Studies Reader

• essays grouped by key subject areas including religion, nation, citizenship, home and belonging, visual culture, and

• introductions to each section that situate each work within its historical, disciplinary, and theoretical contexts;

interdisciplinary field. The book traces the emergence and development of diaspora studies as a field of scholarship,

The Routledge Diaspora Studies Reader

•  essays grouped by key subject areas including religion, nation, citizenship, home and belonging, visual culture, and

• introductions to each section that situate each work within its historical, disciplinary, and theoretical contexts;

managing the nation, digital diasporas;

The Routledge Diaspora Studies Reader

•  essays grouped by key subject areas including religion, nation, citizenship, home and belonging, visual culture, and

• introductions to each section that situate each work within its historical, disciplinary, and theoretical contexts;

interdisciplinary field. The book traces the emergence and development of diaspora studies as a field of scholarship,

The Routledge Diaspora Studies Reader

•  essays grouped by key subject areas including religion, nation, citizenship, home and belonging, visual culture, and

• introductions to each section that situate each work within its historical, disciplinary, and theoretical contexts;

interdisciplinary field. The book traces the emergence and development of diaspora studies as a field of scholarship,

The Routledge Diaspora Studies Reader

•  essays grouped by key subject areas including religion, nation, citizenship, home and belonging, visual culture, and

• introductions to each section that situate each work within its historical, disciplinary, and theoretical contexts;

interdisciplinary field. The book traces the emergence and development of diaspora studies as a field of scholarship,
This new edition is fully updated and revised to reflect the latest developments on the scope of the theoretical discussion of the phenomenon of speaking, using the relationships between spoken and written language. A unique feature of the authors' extensive experience of research in this field of applied linguistics.

In this volume she coauthors with Beatrice Szczepek Reed to broaden considerably the scope of the theoretical discussion of the phenomenon of speaking, using comprehensive and multifaceted empirical perspectives. Readers will also be very welcome. It combines historical and current approaches and puts it into the context of a readable and holistic overview of language theory.

Anne Burns, Reader in Education at the University of York, UK.

Rebecca Hughes is Director of Education at the British Council and Honorary Chair of the Language, Education and Communication section of the Malaysian Association of Teachers of English (MATE). She is also an Adjunct Professor at the Asia-Pacific Institute of Education, University of New South Wales, Australia.

Malaysia Campus.
This extensively revised and updated fifth edition not only examines the new "issues" that move students from a foundation in urban geography through...
Kenneth Foster, the author of "Performing Arts Presenting; From Theory to Practice," has more than 30 years of experience as an arts organization leader. He is a Performance Artist and Professor of Creative Process and Business of the Arts, currently Director of Arts Leadership at the University of Southern California. His first book, "Arts Leadership: Creating Sustainable Arts Organizations," was published in 2007. The book provides practical insights and draws its power from the creative process.

In disrupting conventional arts leadership practice, the book offers an exceptional tool to process that is intrinsic to the arts. Foster proposes an innovative approach to organizational design, systems, and structures for arts leaders in the 21st century that is based in ecological thinking and the creative process. With a global perspective drawn from his extensive experience advising arts organizations around the world and based on his own work successfully leading important performing arts organizations in the United States, these challenges are examined, how they are affecting the performing arts and arts organizations in general, and proposes creative ways to reimagine, build and lead sustainable arts organizations.

The book provides an overview of the field of arts leadership, focused on the performing arts. It examines what these challenges are, how they are affecting the performing arts and arts organizations in general, and proposes creative ways to reimagine, build and lead sustainable arts organizations. It is an invaluable guide to the complexities and influence of Thatcherism on succeeding governments, Major and Cameron, and Thatcher's approach to the professional ethic, Thatcher's relations with Europe—East and West, and the legacy of the Falklands War.

"Arts Leadership: Creating Sustainable Arts Organizations" is a most accessible and up-to-date explanation of both the person and the ism; and Thatcher's approach to the professional ethic; Thatcher's relations with Europe—East and West; and the legacy of the Falklands War. It is a timely and useful update of a classic text which puts into perspective the legacy of Thatcherism.
This innovative textbook in the growing field of sustainable consumption studies tackles questions of consumption in relation to everyday life. Middlemiss grapples with big questions in a highly accessible and inviting manner. "Middlemiss expertly relates major real-world problems and solutions to our everyday lives, providing insights that are both informative and thought-provoking."

Divided into three parts, the book begins by introducing the concept of sustainable consumption, outlining the environmental impacts of current consumption trends, and placing these impacts in context. It then explores the dynamics of consumption, focusing on the role of critical thinking and sustainable consumption in addressing environmental challenges.

The final part examines the narratives and stories we tell ourselves about how we will live in the future and the political action needed to address environmental issues. Middlemiss expertly brings together real-world examples and theoretical frameworks to create a comprehensive resource that is both engaging and insightful.

"...Students and others will benefit enormously from Middlemiss' careful work to digest and make accessible the stories we tell ourselves, about how we will live in the future, and the political action we need to take. This book is essential reading for students, academics, professionals and policy-makers with an interest in this growing field. It provides a much-needed window into the complexities of sustainable consumption and the challenges we face in creating a more sustainable future."
Anna Weinstein
Author of

"An essential book—so accessible, so beautifully written, so encouraging and realistic for writer-directors of independent film, producers, and professors.

SCREENWRITING
Film International
University of California at Riverside–Palm Desert

and her BA in Communication Studies/Performance

• Illuminates the business of screenwriting in the United States (New York and Los Angeles) as
• Reveals details about taking meetings, what development executives are looking for in a screenwriter,

Writing for the Screen

is an ideal companion to screenwriting and

Writing for the Screen
screenwriting library hasn't existed before—and a cause for celebration that it finally

Making a Good Script

writes, sticking with a project over the long haul, overcoming discrimination, and reinventing yourself

Writing the Pilot

and little-known truths about the business. With insight from working professionals, you'll be armed with the information you need to pursue your career as a screenwriter.

The Routledge Handbook of Postcolonial Coloniality of Gender' was recently published in between political action and reflection in praxis, chapters are interspersed with manifestos

Divides

Assistant Professor, Centre for Peace Studies and Peace Education, is Senior Lecturer in European and International Development focuses on decolonial feminism and global politics, and her essay 'Social Struggles and the

and the relation between decolonial and feminist thought and established academic disciplines.

The structure of this collection reflects the synergies between decolonial and feminist thought in its four parts, which offer reflections on the politics of knowledge; the challenging examination of how knowledge is produced and taught, is only strengthened when formulated by activists from across the world, as further resources for learning and teaching.

The Routledge Handbook of Postcolonial

Olivia U. Rutazibwa

Politics

(2018) and associate editor of the

International Feminist Journal of Politics

(2018).

Rosalba Icaza

Divides

Complicit Sisters: Gender and Women's Issues across North–South

These essays definitively argue that the decolonization of universities, through the re-

assistant professor

—William Rabkin,

—Barbara Stone

Globe.
A young woman reading aloud to her friend from a papyrus scroll of their favourite poet in an accurate depiction of Roman reality. Photo © AKG Images.

Susanna Morton Braund is Professor of Latin Poetry and its Reception at the University of Arizona, USA. She is the author of 'Seneca and Epic' and has translated Lucan's 'Phoenician Women'. She has previously taught at Stanford University and Yale University in the USA, and at the Universities of British Columbia, Canada and holder of a Killam Research Fellowship. She taught literature at the University of London, Bristol and Exeter in the UK. She has published extensively on Roman satire and poetry. This second edition is heavily revised to reflect recent developments in scholarship, especially in the area of the later reception and reverberations of Latin literature. Understanding Latin Literature on such varied topics as gender, performance and spectacle, slavery, public and private, and epic and has translated Lucan's 'Agamemnon' and 'Phoenician Women'.

Professor David Christenson, University of Arizona, USA

Braund provides a superb overview of pertinent issues related to Latin literature through translated extracts and through understanding the different ways in which they can be made meaningful. Her unique organization by topic makes it suitable for both individual and class use. She contributes to research and methodology in this area, but the analysis also contributes to the understanding of the relevance of Latin literature to the modern reader.
Routledge titles are available as eBook editions in a range of digital formats.

Professor Ian Davies

• What are the key trends and issues in international contexts?
• How should history learning be assessed?
• How should you make use of ICT in your lessons?
• What do history teachers need to know?
• What is the purpose of history teaching?
• What is happening today in history education?
• Should moral learning be an aim of history education?

It provides fresh guidance for thinking and practice for teachers within the UK and into the major issues that history teachers encounter in their daily professional lives, developments in policy, research and professional practice. With further exploration, remains at the cutting edge.

Now in its second edition, Debates in History Teaching is based at the Department of Education at the University of Bristol, Schools History Project Fellow. Edited by Susan Capel, Jon Davison, James Arthur and John Moss.

Edited by Susan Capel, Jon Davison, James Arthur and John Moss

Penelope Harnett

and Emeritus Professor of Education, University of the West of England, is Lecturer in Sociology at Waterford Institute of Technology, Ireland. His academic concern, with a special focus on political critique in the public sphere and public life in modernity, leading to a cacophony of accusation and denunciation around all political issues. The technique of unmasking 'power' or 'hegemony' or 'ideology' has problematised critique and diagnoses its crisis, cultivating acritical and imaginative ways.

This book draws on anthropological theory to provide a different perspective on this phenomenon; critique appears as a liminal predicament combining imitative polemical and schismatic urges with a haunting sense of uncertainty. It thereby addresses a central problem within social media. Combining historical interrogations of the roots of critique, as well as examining contemporary political discourse in relation to populism, as seen in presidential elections, historical commemorations and welfare reform, this book problematises critique and diagnoses its crisis, cultivating acritical and imaginative ways.
The book, "Conducting Educational Design Research," by Susan M. McKenney, is a comprehensive guide for graduate students and experienced researchers new to the approach. The second edition has been updated to include enhanced guidance, more examples, and attention to design-based processes in detail. The book supports readers in grasping and realizing the potential of educational design research. It demonstrates how rigorous and relevant investigation can yield both theoretical understanding and practical solutions. The research is carefully structured to produce insights that can serve the work of others.

Key features of the book include:
- Examples of how specific theories have been used to enrich the work
- Detailed, behind-the-scenes descriptions of actual project work
- Assessment tools

The book is designed to help readers understand and apply educational design research principles effectively. It is an essential resource for anyone interested in advancing educational design research.
Lawrence Manion in educational and social research. The book is supported by a wealth of online materials, including

• Beyond mixed methods: using Qualitative Comparative Analysis (QCA) to integrate cross
• Using secondary data in educational research
• Research questions and hypotheses

Research Methods in Education contains a wealth of up-to-the-minute information and guidance on educational research which will be of immense value to researchers at all stages of their careers. Comprehensive, well written and relevant: the eighth edition of Research Methods in Education is an up-to-date, one-stop shop, taking education research technology, China.

Fiona McGarry is an up-to-date, one-stop shop, taking education research technology, China.

Based on the Sejong National Corpora, the largest written and spoken corpora of Korean, providing a list of the 5,000 most frequently used words in the language. The DICTIONARY OF KOREAN enables students of all levels to get the most out of their study of vocabulary in an engaging and efficient way. With entries arranged both by frequency and alphabetically, A FREQUENCY DICTIONARY OF KOREAN provides the user with detailed information for each of the entries, including illustrative examples and English translations. SUN-HEE LEE is an associate professor in the Department of East Asian Languages and Cultures at Wellesley College, USA. SANG KYU SEO is a professor in the Department of Korean Language and Design, while a separate CD version provides the full text in a tab-delimited format ideally suited for use by corpus and computational linguists.

Languages and Cultures at Wellesley College, USA.

DICTIONARY OF KOREAN enables students of all levels to get the most out of their study of vocabulary in an engaging and efficient way. With entries arranged both by frequency and alphabetically, A FREQUENCY DICTIONARY OF KOREAN provides the user with detailed information for each of the entries, including illustrative examples and English translations. SUN-HEE LEE is an associate professor in the Department of East Asian Languages and Cultures at Wellesley College, USA. SANG KYU SEO is a professor in the Department of Korean Language and Design, while a separate CD version provides the full text in a tab-delimited format ideally suited for use by corpus and computational linguists.

Based on the Sejong National Corpora, the largest written and spoken corpora of Korean, providing a list of the 5,000 most frequently used words in the language. The DICTIONARY OF KOREAN enables students of all levels to get the most out of their study of vocabulary in an engaging and efficient way. With entries arranged both by frequency and alphabetically, A FREQUENCY DICTIONARY OF KOREAN provides the user with detailed information for each of the entries, including illustrative examples and English translations. SUN-HEE LEE is an associate professor in the Department of East Asian Languages and Cultures at Wellesley College, USA. SANG KYU SEO is a professor in the Department of Korean Language and Design, while a separate CD version provides the full text in a tab-delimited format ideally suited for use by corpus and computational linguists.

Languages and Cultures at Wellesley College, USA.

DICTIONARY OF KOREAN enables students of all levels to get the most out of their study of vocabulary in an engaging and efficient way. With entries arranged both by frequency and alphabetically, A FREQUENCY DICTIONARY OF KOREAN provides the user with detailed information for each of the entries, including illustrative examples and English translations. SUN-HEE LEE is an associate professor in the Department of East Asian Languages and Cultures at Wellesley College, USA. SANG KYU SEO is a professor in the Department of Korean Language and Design, while a separate CD version provides the full text in a tab-delimited format ideally suited for use by corpus and computational linguists.
This new edition of Exploring Intercultural Communication is a lucid introduction to the field of intercultural communication. It goes beyond traditional boundaries, exploring the role of language in intercultural communication, the concept of "turbulence" in intercultural communication, and the impact and role of technology in intercultural communication. Varied topics, lively style and useful activities will appeal to students around the world.

She has published extensively on multilingual and intercultural communication and child language. She contributes to a range of journals and has been forum and reviews editor of Applied Linguistics and joint series editor of Routledge Language and Communication Studies. She is Professor of Applied Linguistics and Communication at Birkbeck, University of London, UK.

Zhu Hua i

Adam Jaworski, The University of Hong Kong, Hong Kong

Publishing throughout the world

February 2005

Routledge titles are available as eBook editions in a range of digital formats.

Cover image: © Corbis

Routledge

Intercultural Communication Series and Cambridge Key Topics in Applied Linguistics Series.

She has published extensively on multilingual and intercultural communication and child language. She has contributed to a range of journals and has been forum and reviews editor of Applied Linguistics and joint series editor of Routledge Language and Communication Studies. She is Professor of Applied Linguistics and Communication at Birkbeck, University of London, UK.

Zhu Hua i

Adam Jaworski, The University of Hong Kong, Hong Kong

Publishing throughout the world

February 2005

Routledge titles are available as eBook editions in a range of digital formats.

Cover image: © Corbis

Routledge

Intercultural Communication Series and Cambridge Key Topics in Applied Linguistics Series.
She has published extensively on multilingual and intercultural communication and child language. She has contributed to various modules within applied linguistics, TESOL, education or communication, paying particular attention to the interplay between cultural diversity and language and the concept of "turbulence" in intercultural communication, as well as updated references, accurately reflecting recent advances in the field.

Exploring Intercultural Communication investigates the role of language in intercultural communication studies. Varied topics, lively style and useful activities will appeal to students around the world.

"This book provides a lucid introduction to the field of intercultural communication and Ethnicity talk and the impact and role of technology in intercultural communication. Including symbolic power, communicative turbulence, conversational inequality, stereotypes, racism, Nationality and Ethnicity talk and the impact and role of technology in intercultural communication. Including symbolic power, communicative turbulence, conversational inequality, stereotypes, racism, Nationality..."

Janet Holmes, Victoria University of Wellington, New Zealand

Adam Jaworski, The University of Hong Kong, Hong Kong
This revised, expanded and updated edition of Zhu Hua's popular textbook provides additional and interesting new material and new perspectives, such as the concept of “turbulence” in intercultural communication, as well as updated references, accurately reflecting recent advances in the field.

This second edition increases and updates the coverage on emerging key topics, including theoretical issues in intercultural communication studies. Varied topics, lively style and useful activities will appeal to students around the world.

Janet Holmes, Victoria University of Wellington, New Zealand

Adam Jaworski, The University of Hong Kong, Hong Kong

Exploring Intercultural Communication investigates the role of language in intercultural practice. The second edition provides a lucid introduction to the field of intercultural communication, paying particular attention to the interplay between cultural diversity and language, symbolic power, communicative turbulence, conversational inequality, stereotypes, racism, Nationality and Ethnicity talk and the impact and role of technology in intercultural communication. Including engaging real world case studies and practical exercises.

She has published extensively on multilingual and intercultural communication and child language. She is Professor of Applied Linguistics and Communication at Birkbeck, University of London, UK.

Routledge titles are available as eBook editions in a range of digital formats.
Exploring Intercultural Communication investigates the role of language in intercultural communication, teaching principles and techniques for avoiding misunderstandings and achieving successful cross-cultural communication. This second edition includes new content on the concept of “turbulence” in intercultural communication, as well as updated content on emerging key topics, including symbols, power, nonverbal communication, and intercultural negotiation. Updated with the latest research and references, accurately reflecting recent advances in the field.

Janet Holmes, Victoria University of Wellington, New Zealand

This revised, expanded and updated edition of Zhu Hua's popular textbook on intercultural communication maintains the book's strengths as an accessible and engaging introduction to the field. It is suitable for students in a variety of disciplines, including applied linguistics, TESOL, and international communication modules within applied linguistics. This second edition provides a lucid introduction to the field of intercultural communication and includes updated and expanded content on emerging key topics. It is suitable for students in a variety of disciplines, including applied linguistics, TESOL, and international communication modules within applied linguistics. It is also an attractive resource for students and researchers around the world.

Zhu Hua is Professor of Applied Linguistics and Communication at Birkbeck, University of London, UK. She has published extensively on multilingual and intercultural communication and multilingualism. This book has become even more attractive in its detailed coverage of key practical and theoretical issues in intercultural communication studies. Varied topics, lively style and useful activities will appeal to students around the world.